Aims and Scope

The Journal of the Anthropological Survey of India is the official organ of the Anthropological Survey of India under the Ministry of Culture, Government of India which is published bi-annually. It is a double-blind peer reviewed journal, which accepts original papers in all areas of anthropology and allied disciplines. The aim of this journal is to study the tribes and other communities both from a biological and a cultural point of view; to study the human skeletal remains, both archaeological and modern; and to subsequently disseminate the anthropological studies conducted in India and rest of the world.

The journal publishes empirical and theoretical research papers as well as review papers, research notes, brief communications and book reviews. The scope of this journal includes but is not limited to:

- Socio-cultural anthropology
- Physical anthropology
- Human genetics
- Paleo-anthropology
- Sociology
- Folklore
- Sociolinguistics
- Tribal and rural studies
- Human ecology and environment
